TV interview

Shah says he won't abdicate

NEW YORK, March 7 (R) — The Shah of Iran says he has no intention of abdicating, according to Barbara Walters of ABC television who interviewed him in Morocco Monday.

"Why should I abdicate? I left my country to help straighten things out. It obviously has had the opposite effect," she quoted him as saying.

Miss Walters said the Shah would not allow sound cameras to be used for the interview. ABC broadcast her report Tuesday night, showing a soundless film of her conversation with him.

She said he was reticent about peaking at length on any topic and told her: "If only I'd had three more years all my programs would have been working and people would have seen that I was trying to do."

ABC said the interview was the first the Shah has given since he left Iran in January. It was conducted in the grounds of a heavily-guarded estate in Rabat which King Hassan has lent to the Shah.

He said he did not think he would stay permanently in Morocco. Residence in the United States was still a possibility, but he had not gone to the United States initially after leaving Iran because many people had advised him to stay in the area.

Asked whether he was bitter, the Shah said: "No, because I am a religious man. I am not bitter. But that doesn't mean I can't suffer."

He said rumors that he had left Iran with huge sums of money were ridiculous.

In Tehran, the Iranian provisional government on Wednesday denied a local press report which claimed that Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan had resigned.

Deputy Prime Minister Abbas Amir Entezam described the reports as unfounded and mere rumors.

A local English-language daily newspaper said Bazargan had gone to Qom Tuesday to hand his resignation to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, acknowledged leader of the Islamic revolution.

Entezam, the government's lone spokesman, said Bazargan was in the capital and had not gone to Qom.

But the report illustrated deep differences between Bazargan's government and Khomeini, underlined by the Ayatollah in a speech to theological students and religious leaders Wednesday in Qom.

He attacked government suggestions that Iranians should be given the chance to establish a Western-style democracy instead of an Islamic republic.

He also criticized some government ministers "who have weak characters" for believing that "everything should be copied from the West."

Carter's bid brings no peace

NEW YORK, March 7 (R) — Prince Muhammad Al Faisal said President Carter's latest Middle East overtures were a sham and would not bring peace to the region.

Prince Muhammad said that he agreed with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin when he said he would not sign a "sham" treaty.

Asked what he thought of the president's forthcoming visit to Egypt and Israel, the prince said: "It is a sham."

Prince Muhammad, a businessman, told a lunch hosted by the American-Arab Association for Commerce and Industry, that he doubted President Carter's Middle East trip would bring peace.

"You can't have a bilateral agreement to settle a multilateral problem," he said.

Emphasizing that he was giving his personal opinion and not speaking for the Saudi government, he said what was needed was a multilateral accord, not a bilateral agreement.

Carter is to fly to Egypt and Israel this week in an attempt to negotiate the final terms of a peace treaty between the two.

The prince gave his view in response to a question following an address on "A New Concept of Islam" before the association.

He said an Islamic republic "is something that is very close to the American republic" and that the U.S. bill of rights was similar to the rights spelled for Muslims in the Koran.

As League prepares mission

Yemen's tension escalating

KUWAIT, March 7 (Agencies) — North and South Yemen continued to exchange charges of escalated tension of their joint border Wednesday as the Arab League prepared to dispatch military and civilian fact-finding teams to the area to supervise a ceasefire.

North Yemen Wednesday reported South Yemeni air raids for the second consecutive day, but said it would continue to observe the latest ceasefire.

A military spokesman said

South Yemeni planes struck twice across the border in the Qatabah area, but were driven back by North Yemeni defenses.

The border situation was reviewed at an ordinary meeting of South Yemen's cabinet, which stressed it would scrupulously observe resolutions adopted early Tuesday by Arab foreign ministers meeting in Kuwait.

Sanaa radio said the cabinet thanked the Arab countries for their initiative to halt the fighting.

North and South Yemen pledged in the final statement of the Kuwait ministerial conference, to stop fighting.

A ceasefire was originally ordered by both governments on Saturday, but each side accused the other of violations.

However, North Yemeni forces Wednesday launched a fierce attack on South Yemeni troops near the border, a South Yemeni Foreign Ministry source said.

Beirut stock exchange reopens

Israelis not withdrawing, says UNIFIL

TEL AVIV, March 7 (AP) — United Nations peacekeepers in southern Lebanon charged Wednesday that Israel was violating its commitment to withdraw its soldiers from Lebanon.

A statement issued by the spokesman for the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) cited two incidents, one on Feb. 28 and one Tuesday, in which an Israeli army major accompanied armed Lebanese rightist militias in attempts to enter the UNIFIL zone.

The Israeli army spokesman here had no immediate comment on the matter.

A U.N. statement said, "The UNIFIL command views the behavior of the Israeli major ... as a serious provocation and finds the presence of the Israeli officer in UNIFIL area of operations as a new violation of the Israeli withdrawal from the area."

Last March Israel invaded southern Lebanon up to the Litani River, 15 miles north of the border. When Israel withdrew last June, U.N. troops moved into southern Lebanon with the mandate of preventing armed troops from entering the zone.

Although UNIFIL was supposed to cover the entire area from the Litani to the border, Israeli troops handed a strip six miles deep along the frontier to militias allied with Israel.

In Beirut meanwhile, rightist militiamen and Syrian troops of the Arab Deterrent Force (ADF) continued sniping at each other Tuesday in the eastern sector, spokesmen from both sides reported.

There were no reports of casualties from the intermittent mortar and machine gun fire.

It was also announced in Beirut that Lebanon's stock exchange reopened Wednesday after a 13-month shutdown.

The closure resulted from the confrontation between rightist militias and Syrian troops of the ADF last summer.

A statement from the Lebanese government said reactivation of the stock market was a significant step toward restoring Lebanon's pre-war economic life as the only free-money market in the Middle East.

Paris: No settlement without Palestinians

PARIS, March 7 (Agencies) — As President Jimmy Carter left Washington for Cairo Wednesday night France issued a statement calling for an overall Middle East settlement as the only way to bring "lasting peace" to the region.

Carter was due to meet Thursday and Friday with President Anwar Sadat and other top Egyptian leaders and then to fly to Tel Aviv Saturday for talks with Israeli leaders in his bid to revive Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

But France, in its first official statement on the Carter trip, said any real peace in the Middle East could only be obtained by taking into account the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people to a homeland.

A French cabinet statement issued here Wednesday night read:

"The government recalls its position that only an overall settlement, associating all the interested nations and taking into account the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people to dispose of a homeland, can bring back peace and stability in this sensitive region of the world."

And in Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization's executive committee called on Palestinians living under Israeli occupation to greet Carter Saturday by staging a general strike and demonstrations.

The executive committee also called for a meeting of Arab heads of state to deal with the results of Carter's visit, and said in a communique that the trip represented, "a direct participation by the U.S. administration in efforts to liquidate the Palestinian cause."

Carter's visit to the Middle East is a direct challenge to the will of the Arab Nation, "the communique said."

The PLO called on Arab foreign ministers to immediately "implement the resolutions of the Baghdad Arab summit conference, especially those imposing sanctions on the Egyptian regime of President Anwar Sadat."

In Cairo, meanwhile, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said Wednesday Egypt might seek some changes in Carter's latest Middle East peace proposals.

After a 90-minute meeting with President Sadat on the eve of Carter's arrival in Egypt, Khalil described the new American proposals as "very positive."

But the said Israel had not accepted all the new proposals and was trying to introduce some changes.

"This is also our position," Khalil said, adding "We might introduce some changes."

The new proposals were outlined to President Sadat Tuesday by Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Khalil said he would see Brzezinski Thursday after a cabinet meeting to outline Egypt's final position on the proposals. This would be only a few hours before Carter arrives to begin three days of talks with President Anwar Sadat. Other Egyptian officials insist that Cairo will not give way on basic issues in signing a peace treaty with Israel.

One highly-placed Egyptian official said, "We hope President Carter is not bringing anything short of our demands."

Another foreign ministry official, commenting on Carter's three day visit, said "President Carter can expect a warm welcome and serious political talks when he comes tomorrow, but no concessions on Egypt's known position."

Israel has in the past rejected Egypt's insistence that any treaty must be linked to Palestinian

BUS EXPLOSION: Israeli firemen put out flames on gutted bus that was bombed on Mount of Olives Wednesday. A second bomb exploded at the Allenby bridge over the Jordanian river injuring 12 persons while a third bomb was defused in Afula, 30 miles north of Tel Aviv. (AP wirephoto)

Two Israeli buses bombed, 12 wounded

TEL AVIV, March 7 (Agencies) — Bombs were planted on three tourist buses in Israel Wednesday, and two of the bombs exploded causing 12 injuries, authorities said.

The third bomb of the day was discovered on a tour bus near Afula, 50 miles north of Tel Aviv, the police spokesman said.

A bomb exploded on a tourist bus in Jerusalem, causing no injuries but destroying the bus.

And 12 persons were lightly injured in an explosion aboard a bus taking tourists from Jerusalem to the Allenby Bridge crossing between Jordan and the West bank, the army spokesman said.

In Beirut the Palestinian People's Struggle Front (PPSF) said in a statement that its commandos planted the time bomb in the bus, parked in front of a hotel on the Mount of Olives.

Companies deny seeking excessive oil price hike

ABU DHABI, March 7 (R) — Officials of Western oil firms Wednesday denied accusations they were seeking excessive price increases for their refined products during the market shortages created by a gap in Iranian exports.

The biggest increase any foreign company sought was about 29 per cent, an official on one foreign oil company said in Abu Dhabi.

Earlier this week, United Arab Emirates (UAE) Oil Minister Mana Al-Oteiba accused the oil firm of asking for unjustified 80 per cent price increases, and threatened to blacklist them if they persisted.

Oteiba, who is chairman of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), was opening the first Arab energy conference last Sunday.

Qatar and Kuwait have also charged that Western companies are making huge profits at the expense of consumers and producers.

The activities of the oil companies, in the volatile oil market caused by a 10-week suspension of exports from Iran, which ended Monday, would be the main topic at an extraordinary meeting of OPEC ministers in Geneva on March 26, he said.

Oteiba said he would raise the question of blacklisting the companies at this meeting.

USS Constellation sent from Philippines to Gulf

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP) — The 80,000-ton aircraft carrier Constellation has been ordered to sail from the Philippines into waters near the Gulf in a demonstration of United States concern about conditions in that area, administration officials have said.

This is the second time that the Constellation, carrying from 80 to 90 planes, has been ordered from the U.S. naval base at Subic Bay to move toward the Indian Ocean. But the last time this occurred in late December, President Jimmy Carter reportedly changed his mind and kept the ship in the South China Sea.

Since then, the Shah has fallen and the United States has apparently lost a certain oil-producing ally in the region.

The Constellation will be accompanied by three or four escorting warships and probably an oiler on the voyage from the Philippines through the Indian Ocean to the Arabian Sea.

Officials said it was uncertain how long the Constellation would be kept in the area.

Within the past two weeks, U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown and other senior officials have stressed that the United States would, as Brown put it, "take any action that's appropriate" to protect the flow of Middle East oil to the United States.

Brown and other top officials also indicated that the United States was consulting with friendly Middle East countries about possible measures that would underscore the importance the United States attaches to stability in the area.

Carter has ruled out establishing any permanent military bases in the region, but there have been indications the United States would like to see an expanded naval presence and possibly periodic visits by warplanes.

The United States has been sending carrier task forces into the Indian Ocean on two-month deployments since early 1972, but has never maintained any significant continuing naval presence. A small "show the flag" force of three ships, two destroyers and a command ship, has cruised the Gulf and Red Sea for about 30 years, but this represents only minor naval power.

But last November the United States sent a cruiser, a frigate and a guided-missile destroyer into the Indian Ocean, ostensibly for joint maneuvers with the Iranian and Pakistani navies.

These ships have been relieved, and Washington, apparently intends to keep a small force of that size in that general area, in addition to the Constellation-led carrier task force now ordered from the Philippines.

Three destroyers and frigates which passed through the Suez Canal from the Mediterranean last week are now in port at Djibouti.

The Soviet navy first entered the Indian Ocean more than 10

Badr attacks detente, appeals for weapons

HOUSTON, March 7 (AP) — Saudi Minister of State Dr. Fayez Badr this week here issued a warning against the 'intellectual trap of detente', which has permitted the spread of Communist influence in the Third World.

Dr. Badr, who is also president of the Saudi Ports Authority, made a strong plea for Saudi allies to support the Kingdom with supplies of sophisticated weaponry to defend its borders.

Dr. Badr was addressing a dinner at the Hyatt Regency Hotel here on March 4 to receive his award of the first annual "International Executive of the Year Award". The first-ever award was made by "B and E International", an energy publication based here.

Industry to hear code of safety

Here is part of the text of Dr. Badr's speech:

It is a pity that as we meet tonight in such a good cause, the world in which we live is suffering from turmoil, unrest, and fear. If we look at the world map, we are struck with fear. In South East Asia, the Arabian Sea, the Mediterranean, Africa, and even South America, ideological as well as military infiltration by armed Communists spearheads has become the theme of our lives.

Ironically, while all this is happening we still romanticize with detente and pursue apathetic, ostrich-type politics unprecedented in modern history.

Worse still, the intellectual trap of detente has not only given Communist infiltrators a free pass to stroll over the map, but it has caused fundamental shifts of priorities in many developing countries. Resources have been shifted from spending on food production, school-building, social and physical infrastructure to defense hardware. This, of course, will make the poor poorer and, in turn,

Dr. Fayez Badr will pave the way for further infiltration.

The world is stunned by the mass media in the U.S. Instead of preserving the image of U.S. leadership the American mass media has been conducting a reckless, self-defeating campaign against America; its leaders, institutions, economics, and individuals. The U.S. media, through its untested ability to confuse fantasy with reality, has become a ruthless dictator, unnecessarily exposing the country's critical weaknesses to adversaries who have not hesitated to take advantage.

History teaches us that Communist infiltration has a built-in feedback mechanism—once started it spreads. This was very well comprehended by the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. He said that power was the only language the USSR understood and any communication with it would be effective only if it could not miscalculate U.S. power. If we add to this fact Lenin's maxim: "The best strategy for defense is to attack," then the path for action by the United States becomes crystal clear.

To issues of this type, the mass media in America should address itself. It should not indulge in stripping naked the tactics of the CIA or suspecting the financial honesty of President Jimmy Carter or smearing an overseas corporation that paid for its business promotion. All these subjects are at the bottom of today's American priorities, which are topped by the American pride.

One of the most unfortunate paradoxes of our time shows poor and comparatively powerless countries battling fiercely to prove that they are not paper tigers, while truly powerful countries give every reason to be considered just that. This is no joke. It may redraw the map of the world.

In my press conference Friday March 2, I was asked about the vulnerability of Saudi Arabia to the turmoil experienced by some of its neighbors.

Saudi Arabia's politico-economic model is defended from within not from without. And that is what makes it invulnerable to ideological and/or military infiltration. But the fact remains that Saudi Arabia will be stronger if its friends understand its requirements for sophisticated defense supplies in to help it defend and almost 8,000 kilometers of borders.

Seeking private investment

Water, soil restrict ministry ambit

JEDDAH, March 7 (SPA) — Minister of Agriculture and Water Dr. Abdul Rahman Al-Sheikh said Tuesday his ministry was concentrating on the development of agriculture only in regions where water and good soil are available in plenty.

Speaking to Saudi Radio Tuesday on the occasion of the inauguration by King Khalid of the Jeddah III desalination project, Dr. Al-Sheikh said the ministry would follow this strategy through the establishment of major agricultural companies. These would receive investment from the private sector as well as the government.

ment and would be only considered if economically viable.

Dr. Al-Sheikh said that private Saudi interests were already involved in projects for producing meat, fodder and poultry.

Among regions for development, the minister mentioned the Tihama region in the south-west as one of the most potentially fertile in the Kingdom with large reserves of subsoil water.

Dr. Al-Sheikh said water and good grazing is also available in Qassim, Ashar, Asir and the Northern Frontiers and the ministry was preparing studies on development in these areas.

Turning to desalination, Dr. Al-Sheikh said that water from this source was targeted only for drinking and industrial use. In areas of agricultural potential, like Abha and Khamis, Musahit, drinking water supplier would be supplemented from desalination. A project for the two towns is now under study, he said.

Work is already underway on the 50 million gallowarday Jeddah IV plant and first-phase programs at Haql, Jubail and Yanbu. Dr. Al-Sheikh said.

Plants are under consideration at Mecca, Hafir Al-Baten, Qunfuzah, Mastura, Thawal, Qudaima, Birk and Wejha as well as Yanbu II.

Saudia grew 33 percent in 1978

JEDDAH, March 7 (SPA) — Saudia, the Kingdom's national carrier, announced Wednesday new figures which reveal a dramatic increase in both the number of passengers flown and the amount of freight carried.

Approximately 6,268,122 flew Saudia in 1978, of which 4,549,989 took domestic and 1,718,139 international flights. This constitutes a 33 per cent increase over figures for 1977.

Cargo shipped by Saudia reached 48,801,816 kilos — 32,684,933 domestically and 16,116,883 on international flights.

Mail transported by Saudia in 1978 weighed a total of 3,682,725 kilos. Over 3 million kilos of that was delivered inside the country.

Saudia compared the figures for December 1977 and 1978 and reported that 541,017 people flew Saudia during the month of last year, an increase of nearly 19 per cent. The amount of cargo in December 1978 increased by nearly 2 per cent over the same period in 1977.

No deals made over Bhutto, sources assert

ISLAMABAD, March 7 (AP) — Informer sources have sought to dispel what they said was speculation in the foreign and Pakistani press that has created a false impression that some kind of "negotiations" or "bargaining" has been going on in connection with the fate of deposed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Bhutto is under sentence of death for ordering a political murder.

The speculation was set off by dispatches in the foreign press after a two-hour meeting Sunday night between Abdul Hafiz Pirzada and the president, Gen. Muhammad Zia ul-Haq. Pirzada is one of the defense lawyers for Bhutto and the most important leader of Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party (PPP) who is not in jail.

The two-hour interview was requested by Pirzada. Zia agreed to see him because he represents an important political party, the sources said.

Pirzada apparently pleaded for clemency. At a press conference Thursday, Zia said it was his prerogative to accept or reject the clemency and mercy petitions being made for the former prime minister.

But he also said Thursday that Bhutto's case "is a pure and simple criminal case, having nothing to do with politics at all." Zia had also said "I see no justification why a head of state should come to a decision contrary to what has been decided by the courts." Zia has, on several occasions, stated that he will not interfere or alter the verdict of the Supreme Court, which confirmed Bhutto's death sentence by a 4-3 majority Feb. 6.

Gen. Zia-ul-Haq

Zia also had said that since he took over 18 months ago, nearly 400 people sentenced to death over the past several years were executed.

"Weren't they human beings? I had received strong recommendations for condoning their sentences. Why should there be appeals for granting clemency to one particular person alone?"

Official sources said Zia reiterated this stand when Pirzada met him Sunday. The interview followed Pirzada's meeting with Bhutto in the Rawalpindi Central Jail.

Qaddafi watched executions, paper claims

CAIRO, March 7 (AP) — Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi has personally attended the execution of 20 Libyan Army officers charged with plotting to overthrow his regime, the newspaper "Al-Ahram" claimed Wednesday.

In a Paris report, "Al-Ahram" said the execution took place several weeks ago at an air force academy building in

'Khomeini Street' on West Bank

TEL AVIV, March 7 (R) — The Israeli military governor of the occupied West Bank has ordered the mayor of Kalkilia not to name the main street to the town Khomeini Street.

the city of Misrata. The paper did not specify the means of execution.

The accused officers were members of a secret organization within the Libyan armed force aimed at toppling Qaddafi's regime, the paper said.

"Al-Ahram" said some other members of the alleged organization have been arrested.

The "Al-Ahram" report mentioned no source. It said Qaddafi banned funeral services for the dead officers and ordered their families not to receive condolences.

The paper said official suspicion that two Czech military experts had some link in the alleged coup attempt prompted Prague to send several high ranking intelligence officers to follow up the investigation.

It said last November Qaddafi had uncovered another clandestine military organization known as the Free Libyan Army Officers.

These and other coup attempts, the paper said, led Qaddafi to consider disbanding the Libyan Army. Egypt and Libya have been at odds since 1973 when Qaddafi and President Anwar Sadat differed over policies in the Middle East.

The two countries fought a four-day bloody border battle in 1977 and Qaddafi has been accused here of plotting to destabilize the governments of Sadat and Sudanese President Isafar Numeiri. Egypt's main Arab ally.

Israel court told of anti-Semitism

TEL AVIV, March 7 (R) — Former Israeli Minister Gideon Hausner has claimed to a court that a book written by two British authors was full of anti-Semitic and racist elements.

Hausner, who is also a former state attorney, was among defense witnesses giving evidence Tuesday to a libel suit brought by the authors, Christopher Mayhew and Michael Adams, against the mass-circulation daily "Maariv".

In a review of the book "Publish It Not", the paper charged that it bore Nazi and anti-Semitic marks.

The book, describing the pro-Israeli bias of the British press, was published three years ago.

In his testimony Tuesday, Chaim Herzog, Israel's former ambassador to the United Nations, alleged there was a kind of code which used such terms as "peoples democracy" for Communism and "anti-Zionism" for anti-Jewish.

Ceasefire in Chad repeatedly violated

KHARJOU, March 7 (AP) — Warring forces in Chad are continuing to breach the two-week-old ceasefire Tuesday in N'Djamena with forces of premier Hussein Habre facing the presidential palace of his rival Felix Malloum, the Sudanese News Agency reported.

It said Habre's forces also captured the capital's customs area from Malloum's forces.

The agency said Habre forces have been aided by fighters from another anti-Malloum faction, Froinat, which has been camping on the outskirts of N'Djamena.

It quoted eyewitnesses as saying that Habre forces broke into Gendarmerie headquarters and arrested its leader, Kamogi Wadal Abdul Qadir.

More than 1,000 French are maintaining an uneasy ceasefire between the hostile forces entrenched in N'Djamena. Malloum, Habre and leaders of various breakaway rebel factions were due to meet in Kano, in neighboring Nigeria, Wednesday in an attempt to settle their disputes. Nigerian troops were expected to arrive in N'Djamena later in the week to help police the ceasefire.

Apart from the military casualties in the N'Djamena fighting, more than 100 black southerners were reported murdered in tribal violence in the capital and other towns in recent weeks.

for anti-Jewish.

Another defense witness, Yehoshoffat Harkavi, a former chief of military intelligence, alleged there was anti-Semitism among Arabs and claimed Mayhew and Adams had expressed sympathy with anti-Jewish sentiments.

Mayhew, a former MP and junior Labor minister, and Adams are both leaders of the Council for the Advancement of Arab-British Understanding.

SAUDI ARABIAN MONETARY AGENCY

Head Office - Riyadh

A NOTICE FROM THE SAUDI ARABIAN MONETARY AGENCY REGARDING A NEW ISSUE OF FAO COINS

The Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency hereby announces to the public that a commemorative issue of metal coins of 10 and 5 Halalas denominations would be put into circulation in a limited quantity with effect from Tuesday 15.4.1399 (13th March 1979) in accordance with Royal Decree No. 6 dated 1/7/1379. This issue was minted at the request of the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) of the United Nations in support of its program "Food For All." The Kingdom has previously minted and put into circulation other denominations of Saudi metal coins in support of this program.

This new issue is fully covered by gold and foreign exchange and it would circulate side by side with the 10 and 5 halalas denomination currently in circulation. SAMA has already taken the necessary steps for putting this issue into circulation from all its branches simultaneously.

The main features of these commemorative coins can be briefly outlined as follows:-

10 Halala (FAO)

It is round in shape, made of cupro-nickel and with milled edge. Its diameter is 21 mm.

OBVERSE

In the upper part is inscribed the name of H.M. the King "KHALID BIN ABDUL AZIZ AL-SAUD"; in the lower part the "King of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia" is inscribed; in the middle appears the Saudi Coat-of-Arms (two swords and a palm tree).

REVERSE

In the upper part appears the verse "They give food though they like it"; in the middle inside the inner circle "Quershan" surrounded on both sides by the numerical value of the coin in Arabic and English, below that appears the inscription "Ten Halala" then the year of mint 1398 A.H. (1978 A.D.)

5-Halala (FAO)

It is round in shape, made of cupro-nickel and with milled edge. Its diameter is 19.5 mm.

OBVERSE

In the upper part is inscribed the name of H.M. the King "KHALID BIN ABDUL AZIZ AL-SAUD"; in the lower part the "King of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia" is inscribed; in the middle appears the Saudi Coat-of-Arms (two swords and a palm tree)

REVERSE

In the upper part appears the verse "They give food though they like it"; in the middle inside the inner circle (One Quersh) surrounded on both sides by the numerical value of the coin in Arabic and English, below that appears the inscription "Five Halala" then the year of mint 1398 A.H. (1978 A.D.)

The Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency would like to assure the public that the coin of the 10 Halala and 5 Halala denomination currently in circulation would continue to circulate side by side with the new issue.

NATO employee defects to E. Germany

BERLIN, March 7 (AP) — A woman employee of NATO headquarters in Brussels, has defected to East Germany with war plans of the Western alliance, the East German news agency ADN says.

Ursel Lorenzen, a confidential secretary in the executive staff, crossed into East Germany Monday, the agency said Tuesday, without specifying her job at NATO or personal details.

"NATO war plans will be released at the appropriate time," along with opinions of NATO officials, ADN said, indicating the woman's statements would be the source of any disclosures.

She was quoted as saying that increased "war preparations" by NATO were behind her decision to enter East Germany.

ADN said the disclosure of the "Fascist past" of NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns provided the final reason for her move.

In Brussels, NATO confirmed the defection late Tuesday.

An official said Miss Lorenzen was employed in the office of council operations and communications, "a small office which prepares for exercises."

He gave no age for Miss Lorenzen and said he had no comment on whether her duties were of a sensitive nature.

ADN quoted the woman as saying NATO was planning "an atomic attack against the Socialist camp" during the Wintex-Cimex exercise now being held by the Western alliance.

NATO said Tuesday Wintex-Cimex is a "paper exercise and involves no troops at all." The exercise had not been called off because of Miss Lorenzen's defection and will take about two more weeks to complete. The exercise began on Tuesday.

NATO confirmed Miss Lorenzen is not married and is a West German national. She had been with the organization for 11 years, joining just after NATO headquarters moved to Brussels from Paris.

The defection comes a few weeks after another West German woman, Ingrid Garbe, 38, was implicated in espionage at NATO for East Germany and now faces trial in her country.

Investigators ponder Carter's family firm

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP) — The Justice Department says it is studying a way of proceeding with its investigation of President Jimmy Carter's family peanut warehouse business, including the "rather extraordinary step of appointing a special prosecutor."

The department said the options were discussed for about an hour Tuesday at a meeting with nine Republican members of the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee. The meeting was requested by Rep. Robert McClell of Illinois, the ranking Republican member.

Rep. R. James Scahill of New York (R-Wisc.) said Justice Department officials agreed to explore the propriety of naming a special prosecutor and promised to report in two weeks on whether this step would be appropriate.

Adamson said a special prosecutor was one of several options discussed at the meeting, which included Attorney General Griffin Bell, Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti and Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann, who heads the department's Criminal Division and is overseeing the investigation.

Cold Callisto scrutinized by Voyager

PASADENA, Calif., March 6 (AP) — Voyager 1 turned its cameras Tuesday to Callisto, a moon of Jupiter so cold that scientists think snow "comes up instead of coming down."

The spacecraft, already a million miles past Jupiter, soared close to Callisto, a frozen moon larger than the planet Mercury.

The spacecraft's approach showed shining white craters and ridge-like lines against a dark, rough surface.

Scientists had been surprised Monday when another of Jupiter's 13 moons, 10, showed few meteor craters. That suggested a complex series of erosion processes.

"The surface of Callisto is really peppered," said Larry Soderblom, while watching increasingly detailed pictures show up on television monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Voyager 1 passed Callisto, as it swung out into space for a 20-month cruise to Saturn. It has already sent back the most detailed pictures ever taken of Jupiter.

THE MAN IN THE MIDDLE: Bishop Abel Muzorewa, of Rhodesia's transitional government, reviews a passing out parade last month of South African police recruits. He is flanked by leaders of the Rhodesian force at the Morris depot in Salisbury. The bishop inspected the police drawn up and made presentations to deserving recruits.

Rhodesia fires chief of military

SALISBURY, March 7 (R) — The commander of the Rhodesian Army, Lt. Gen. John Hickman, has been dismissed, the transitional government's joint defense ministers announced Tuesday night.

No explanation was given for the premature retirement of Gen. Hickman, 47, but military sources implied it was for disciplinary reasons.

The sources said Gen. Hickman was recently involved in an argument with Col. Ron Reid-Daily, commander of Rhodesia's crack Selous Scouts tracker unit. They could give no further details.

The statement by defense ministers Hilary Squires and Noel Mkhono said only, "The joint ministers of defense announce that the acting president has placed Lt. Gen. J.S.V. Hickman on the retired list."

Over disclosure of cost overruns

Nixon sacked outspoken aide, lawyers say

WASHINGTON, March 7

(AP) — Attorneys for Ernest Fitzgerald, who disclosed two billion dollars in cost overruns on the C-5A military transport plane, say President Richard Nixon personally ordered Fitzgerald's dismissal.

They say newly released White House tape transcripts show Nixon also ordered aide John Ehrlichman to "have the most awful gobbledygook answer prepared" to cover up his involvement in Fitzgerald's firing.

The transcripts are included in a civil damage suit Fitzgerald filed against Nixon and White House aides H. R. Haldeman, Bryce Harlow and Alexander Butterfield, who later revealed the secret recordings.

Fitzgerald, fired in 1969 after his disclosure of the cargo plane cost overruns but later reinstated to what he claims was a lesser job, is seeking 3.5 million dollars in damages.

Justice Department attorneys representing the defendants said the tapes indicate Nixon had confused the Fitzgerald case with that of another, unnamed person.

Fitzgerald's lawyers say the transcripts contain conversations between Nixon and top aides after the president, at a Jan. 31, 1973, news conference, acknowledged he had ordered Fitzgerald fired.

The transcript shows that Nixon told Charles Colson after the news conference, "this guy that was fired. I'd marked it in the news summary. That's how that happened. I said get rid of that son of a bitch."

Nixon, according to the transcript, told Ehrlichman the same day, "yeah, well, the point was not that he was complaining about the overruns, but that he was doing it publicly."

Nixon and Ehrlichman also discussed the use of executive privilege to cover up Nixon's involvement, according to Fitzgerald's interpretation of the transcript.

At another point in the transcript, Nixon told Ehrlichman to prepare the "gobbledygook answer," and the former President added, "just put it out on executive privilege. Something that will allow us to do everything that we want."

The next day, Feb. 1, 1973, press secretary Ron Ziegler gave reporters a confused explanation of the use of executive privilege in the Fitzgerald case, the lawyers said.

Start of busy week

Rangers beaten 1-0, by Cologne

LONDON, March 6 (R) — West Germany's FC Cologne and Glasgow Rangers of Scotland opened a week of frenzied action in Europe with pulsating clash Tuesday night.

Europe's top club competition, the European Cup, has reached its quarterfinals and Cologne grabbed a 1-0 first leg lead in front of its home fans, thanks to a 57th minute goal from international striker Dieter Mueller.

The West German champion streamed forward in a desperate search for more goals, but Rangers held on grimly and must fancy their chances of reaching the last four when the second leg is played in two weeks.

Wednesday's other three European Cup ties also linked finely balanced.

Poland's Wisla Krakow was hoping midfielder star Adam Nalita would be 100 per cent fit for its clash against Swedish champion Malmo, which has not yet conceded a goal in this season's competition.

English champion Nottingham Forest, first round conqueror of holder Liverpool, has been struggling to find the net. Manager Brian Clough blasted out one million pound ($2 million) on Birmingham's Trevor Francis, but the English international was ineligible for Wednesday night's battle against Switzerland's Grasshoppers Zurich.

"I am hoping Tony Woodcock and Gary Birtles will hit form. If not we will be out," Clough said.

Grasshoppers' West German coach Helmut Johannson was predictably pessimistic Tuesday, deploring the Swiss side had any chance of holding Forest.

Forest is certainly not taking Grasshoppers lightly.

Last year it reached the semi-finals of the European Football Union (UEFA) Cup and in the last round caused a major upset by dispatching Spain's Real Madrid, six times winner of the European Cup.

Austria Wien, beaten finalist in last year's Cupwinners' Cup, as going to need all its experience against tough East German side Dynamo Dresden.

"The tie could all depend on how we play in the first 30 minutes," said Wien's captain Robert Sara. Midfield star Herbert Prohaska, injured last Saturday, was expected to be fit for the Austrian champion.

Inevitably most attention will be focussed on the European Cup, but 16 other teams will be battling for money and glory in the quarterfinals of the Cupwinners and UEFA Cups.

With transfer fees mounting daily and overheads rocketing few of Europe's top teams can afford to miss a chance of taking part in one of the three money-spinning competitions.

West Germany and England have five clubs between them in the last eight of the UEFA Cup. In the 1980-81 season the competition will be reorganized with countries allocated places on their overall record in Europe from 1974-79.

British League results

LONDON, March 7: Results of British League matches Tuesday night.

English League
Division One
Birmingham 3 QPR 1
Coventry 0 Liverpool 0
Middlesbrough 1 Everton 2

Division Two
Burnley 1 Sheffield Utd 1
Charlton 2 Cambridge 3
Oldham 1 Brighton 3

Division Three
Bury 1 Blackpool 3
Carlisle 2 Tranmere 0

SCORER: A characteristic show of jubilation from FC Cologne's Dieter Mueller who headed in the only goal against Rangers Tuesday.

Everton narrows gap as 'Pool draws again

LONDON, March 7 (R) — Liverpool, held to a 0-0 draw by lowly Chelsea last Saturday, fought out another goalless stalemate away to Coventry Tuesday night.

The English First Division leader was always in control, with Scotland's Kenny Dalglish twice going close, but Coventry, after three home defeats in a row, hung on for a point.

Everton, Liverpool's city rival and second in the title race, cut Liverpool's lead to three points with a 2-1 away win over relegation-threatened Middlesbrough.

Two blunders by Scottish international goalkeeper Jim Stewart let in Everton's England striker Bob Latchford and youngster Ross Jack, making his league debut. Middlesbrough's goal was an 88th-minute penalty by David Armstrong.

Birmingham kept its slim hopes of staying in Division One alive with a 3-1 home win over fellow struggler Queens Park Rangers, while Brighton boosted their chances of promotion from Division Two with a fine 3-1 win at Oldham.

Philly slips

Spurs' humble defense frustrates Nets, 103-99

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP) — Who says the San Antonio Spurs don't play defense? Not coach Doug Moe, or New Jersey Nets coach Kevin Loughery.

"They have a great offense, but they also have one of the better defensive teams," Loughery said Tuesday night after the usually high-scoring Spurs defeated the Nets 103-99. "A lot of people look at the stats, but they play good defense. You have to play defense to win in this league."

That's the National Basketball Association where the Atlanta Hawks beat the Philadelphia 76ers 94-91, the Houston Rockets edged the Denver Nuggets, 119-118, and the Portland Trail Blazers clobbered the New York Knicks, 118-110, in other action Tuesday.

San Antonio nailed down its triumph when James Silas connected on a tie-breaking jump shot and two free throws in the final 25 seconds. The Nets, led, 85-76, entering the final quarter but the Spurs pulled even at 95 on George Gervin's jumper with 1:15 to play.

Gervin and New Jersey's Bernard King took scoring honors with 27 points apiece.

"The defense won the game," said Gervin. "The majority of the time the defense wins the games and it gets our offense going."

Despite their defeat, the third-place Nets remained just 1 1/2 games behind Philadelphia in the Atlantic Division. Atlanta turned back the 76ers when Tom McMillen sank a pair of free throws with 1:28 remaining for the Hawks' seventh consecutive victory and Philly's fifth straight loss.

Try, try again

BUDAPEST, March 7 (R) — Hungarian soccer clubs could have points deducted for lack of effort, as the Hungarian Football Federation said Tuesday that the "fighting spirit and will of certain players did not come up to the mark," when the First Division championship resumed last weekend.

Clubs which "fail to show sincere, devoted spirit necessary to raise the standard of football in Hungary" would lose points.

BJORN BORG: Recovered

Borg recovers to outlast McEnroe in Vienna Cup

VIENNA, March 7 (AP) — Sweden's triple Wimbledon winner Bjorn Borg Tuesday night beat American John McEnroe in the Volo Tennis Cup tournament at the Prater Indoor Stadium here 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

The match lasted nearly 1 3/4 hours and the 6,000 fans witnessed excellent tennis in which Borg had difficulty only in the first set.

McEnroe then seemed quicker, played strongly at the net and often troubled the Swede with light returns.

Before the match Borg had complained of abdominal pains, but in the second set he seemed recovered and had evened the score 1-1 after 27 minutes.

McEnroe seemed to lose strength in the third. He made seven double faults and lost his serve in the third game. Fighting back he made five deuces in the next, but had little resistance left to cope with Borg's powerful serve.

Meanwhile the roof at Wimbledon, that Borg raised when he took his third title is being raised again. But this time it's for real.

The roof of the famous center court is being raised by several meters to make room for four extra rows of seats all round. That will bring in an extra $140,000 this year.

Chronology of peace talks

WASHINGTON — Following is a chronology of Middle East peace developments since direct Israeli-Egyptian contacts began in November 1977:

NOV. 9, 1977: Egyptian President Anwar Sadat tells the Egyptian Parliament he is willing to visit Israel.

NOV. 15: Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, through a U.S. intermediary, formally invites Sadat to Israel.

NOV. 19: Sadat arrives in Israel for 36-hour visit and is welcomed with full military honors.

DEC. 14: Egyptian and Israeli officials open talks in Cairo.

DEC. 25: Sadat and Begin meet in Israel.

DEC. 26: The two leaders end their talks disagreeing over the future of the West Bank of the Jordan River.

JAN. 4, 1978: President Carter visits Egypt.

JAN. 11: Israeli and Egyptian defense ministers meet in Cairo.

JAN. 16: Israeli and Egyptian Foreign Ministers meet in Jerusalem. Sadat quickly recalls his negotiating team after Begin publicly criticizes then Egyptian Foreign Minister Ibrahim Kamel.

FEB. 21, 1979: Vance, Khalil and Dayan begin new talks at Camp David.

FEB. 25: Carter invites Begin and Khalil to meet him for a new, modified Camp David summit.

FEB. 27: Israel rejects the invitation to Begin, Carter then telephones the Israeli leader and invites him to Washington for private talks.

MARCH 1: Begin arrives and talks immediately open.

MARCH 5: Israeli cabinet responds positively to Begin's recommendations on peace proposals from Carter. White House announces Carter will leave for Egypt and Israel on March 7.

saudi press review

When the government issued recently the law on foreign capital investment, its objective was not to attract foreign money as such but to attract expertise, which is needed here in various fields, according to a writer in "Al-Medina." But this has not happened except, perhaps, in a minimal way. We read almost daily of scores of new companies in which the Saudi is either only a partner in the capital or has a share of the profits. The few Saudis who are employed in these companies occupy positions of insignificance. The best position allotted to a Saudi is usually as a public relations officer — a ploy to ward off attacks by the press or criticism of the company by the public.

We do not believe that this was the intention of those who drafted the law, the writer said.

He called on the government to ensure greater Saudi participation in foreign companies. These companies, he said, are registered as Saudi entities although in practice there is nothing Saudi about them except the name.

"Al-Riyadh's" editorial said that the Arab League Council meeting in Kuwait has done well on the whole in containing the war between the two Yemen republics although the situation there is still quite explosive. Temporarily, the Soviet Union has refrained from escalating the war in this part of the Arab world at the same time that it refrained from heightening tensions in the Indo-China theater. But the problem with the Arab League is that, to be effective it has to arrive at collective decisions. We want it to regain its old prestige in order to be able to shoulder its responsibilities and become a respected forum for all Arabs and their problems. "We hope that the recent meeting in Kuwait will be the turning point in the revival of the Arab League," the paper said.

An "Al-Medina" commentator said that the traffic warden here is given far too many powers over drivers and car owners. He is empowered even to imprison a driver without questioning and before the driver is proven guilty. The writer said that the law was made to control accidents and to curtail reckless driving but those in charge of it seem to have forgotten its spirit in favor of its letter. Cutting traffic lights leads to a fine of SR. 600 and since most people do not carry such money as a rule, they often have to be locked up un-

Jupiter keeps mystery

By George Alexander
PASADENA, Calif. — The great red spot, that large reddish-brown patch on the planet Jupiter, may be growing clearer every day in the television images being transmitted back to Earth by the Voyager 1 space probe, but its structure and other properties are no clearer to scientists now than they were when Robert Hooke first saw the oval marking in a telescope more than 300 years ago. "It's a real mystery," said Prof. Bradford Smith, a University of Arizona astronomer and leader of the Voyager 1 science team, with all the obvious relief of a crossword puzzle addict attacking last week's "New York Times" Sunday magazine puzzle or a whodunit fan picking up the latest Ross Mc-Donald book. "If we had had any idea that there was a quick and easy solution to this (feature), he said, "It's gone by now."

The earliest known observation of the spot was made by the British physicist Robert Hooke in 1664, and it was for a time called "Hooke's spot." A year later, the French astronomer Giovanni Domini co Cassini also caught sight of the reddish-orange oval and gave a more detailed description of it than Hooke had. Cassini who first reported that the spot seemed to wax and wane.

Over the centuries, astronomers have studied the great red spot assiduously. Some explained, and have compiled a fairly sizable body of data on it—without getting a closer to understanding its true nature.

The spot has been centered at about 22 degrees south latitude for the more than 300 years since it was first observed. Never moving very far north or south of that.

It has, however, migrated both east and west at different times and at varying speeds, sometimes rapidly, sometimes slowly. It has occasionally been obscured by white and yellowish-white clouds, and its color has changed.

"Its size is quite variable," Smith said, leaning back in his chair in a small Voyager project office at Jet Propulsion Laboratory. Its walls are covered with photos of Jupiter. "There are unsubstantiated reports of it being as big as 48,000 kilometers along long axis, and we do have photographs of it showing it to be definitely 30,000 kilometers long."

Presently, the oval spot is 2,000 by 11,000 kilometers Smith said.

Various measurements of the spot to drive its size have revealed it to be both cold and bright.

These properties, Smith pointed, mean that the spot is higher in the atmosphere than the clouds surrounding it. In this means there has to be some heat source at the heart of the spot to drive its gas to such high altitudes—but that source might be, and it is localized, are unanswerable questions for the moment.

The one thing that Smith is certain of is that the spot rotates slightly as it migrates east and west, with a period of 89.9 days.

Smith ventured a guess that the spot is driven by two positive-flowing belts of air, rather like a roller between two conveyor belts.

"But it still won't explain stability," he said. "It does behave as if it tied to anything (underneath in the Jovian atmosphere). But what keeps embedded just where it is? What energy source is it? Deep down that maintains it."

Any number of theories have been advanced to explain the spot, including that it is a floating raft of solidified material in the lower atmosphere and a so-called Taylor column (a persistent column of gas above a surface feature like a mountain or a depression but all have failed by wayside, Smith said.

China advertises

By David Holley
HONG KONG — Advertising, like many other victims of the Cultural Revolution of the late 1960s, is making a comeback in China.

The first ad promoting several brands of locally produced toothpaste — appeared in the "Tianan daily" recently, and has been followed by newspaper broadsides for everything.

So far, advertising has been limited to Chinese-made products, but the government firm that is China's answer to Madison Avenue, the Shanghai Advertising Corp., has indicated it will place ads for foreign companies, too.

All this represents such a sudden turnabout from the practices of the past decade, when advertising disappeared and displays were not allowed in shop windows, that the official media have been at pains to explain that they really are not taking the capitalist road.

"We, of course, do not approve of the unscrupulous capitalist means of making money ... (but) when looking at the capitalist way of doing business, we must know how to absorb its good points," said an editorial in "Wen Hui Pao," a Shanghai newspaper.

"Advertising is one of them. We must treat advertising as a course of study in stimulating trade at home and abroad and improving management."

"As far as our Socialist economy is concerned, advertisements may also be used to help improve the quality of products and to guide consumers' needs," the editorial added.

Today's ads are more daring than their pre-Cultural Revolution predecessors. While the advertising of the early 1960s was directed at wholesalers, those ads now making an appearance are, like their counterparts in the West, "directed ... at the consumers themselves," said John T. Kamm, Hong Kong representative of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade.

The Chinese version of tonics and patent medicines was touted in the Jan. 29 issue of Shanghai's "Liberation" daily. The ad, placed by the Shanghai Medical Supplies Co., pictured bottles of six different medicines — three of them medicinal liquors.

"Tiger-Bone Wood Melon Liquor" is good for aches and pains, the ad said. For those feeling run down, the ad offered a tonic advertised as good for the blood, stomach and liver.

The advertisement prescribed dosages for the pills, but left the question of how much liquor should be consumed to the customer's judgment.

Foreign companies now selling goods to China soon will be able to advertise their wares in the Chinese press, radio and television, China has announced. "Accepting foreign advertisements on a selective basis to develop foreign trade ... can both widen the horizon of the masses and add to our sources of foreign exchange," the Shanghai newspaper said, in justification of the new policy.

The Chinese press apparently expects criticism both from leftist ideologues, who regard advertising as capitalistic, and from skeptics of all political stripes who question the accuracy of most ads.

"People often equate advertising with 'pompous rhetoric' and 'exaggeration,' the editorial admitted. And the "Gang of Four," the ousted radical clique headed by Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, often claimed that "advertising is capitalist business, what's the use of it?" the newspaper said.

But such critics are wrong if they think advertising can only promote feudalism, capitalism and revisionism," declared "Wen Hui Pao," which went on to list the many benefits to be gained by letting companies promote their products.

"Good advertising can make our cities beautiful, lift our spirits and make us feel proud of a thriving Socialist economy or culture in a cheerful artistic atmosphere," the paper said.

It noted that foreign advertising actually promotes the public welfare on occasion, pointing particularly to the anti-smoking campaigns on American television.

Offering another example, "Wen Hui Pao" observed that "blowing car horns drives one mad." Commercial advertisements to some countries "join in fighting this common enemy," it said, going on to quote an ad placed by a brake company which warned: "Rely on the brakes and not on the horn."

China is now stepping up its drive to attract advertising from overseas, mostly by carrying announcements about its newly revived advertising agencies in its foreign language publications.

"Do you want to do more business?" Asked an advertisement, the first of its kind, on the back cover of the Feb. 16 issue of the "Peking Review," a weekly magazine. "We handle commercial advertisements for foreign manufacturers and traders as well as Chinese export organizations," the ad, placed by the Shanghai Advertising Corp., said.

A similar advertisement, also the first of its kind, appeared in the Feb. 23 edition of Hong Kong's "Wen Hui Pao," which is related historically and by leftist sympathy to its namesake in Shanghai but is otherwise independent. The bold-print, front-page ad announced that both Hong Kong-based and foreign firms can now place ads in Shanghai's "Wen Hui Pao," other Chinese newspapers and magazines, television, radio — and even put up billboards in China.

The Chinese have not yet announced their standard rates for advertisements. But in other spheres they are learning quickly about how the rest of the world conducts business, and usually charge the going rate.

til they produce it. Another grievance expressed by the writer is that policemen automatically imprison drivers who run down pedestrians until a medical report testifies that the patient may recover within a month. If his is not so, the driver may remain in prison indefinitely whether or not he was wrong and whether or not the pedestrian was really to blame.

The writer called on the authorities concerned to review the powers given to traffic policemen, especially with regard to their ability to remand drivers into custody. A man should be given the option of paying a fine on the spot or waiting for a trial if he believes that he is not guilty. But he should be released on bail pending trial, the writer said.

The seriousness of Carter's visit to the region lies not in that it may result in a separate peace treaty between Israel and Egypt, but in that it may be the last American bid for a peaceful settlement in the region, according to "Al-Bilad." President Carter ought, therefore, to realize that any failure may lead to the beginning of the end of American peace efforts. A conflagration will not be too far behind the paper said. We hope the President will make it known that his goal is a comprehensive peace and not merely a partial settlement which can only continue to inflame the region.

"The United Arab Emirates: A Modern History," by Muhammad Morsy Abdullah. London: Croom Helm, 1978. 17.95 pounds sterling.

BOOKSHELF

By F.W. Rawding
JEDDAH — Muhammad Morsy Abdullah is director of the Center for Documentation and Research at the Presidential Court in Abu Dhabi. This book is based mainly upon his doctoral thesis, "Britain and the Trucial States, 1892-1939," which he presented at Cambridge University. For the purposes of publication it has been brought up to the date of the foundation of the UAE in 1971, when the British naval and military power of the Gulf was withdrawn.

As Professor R.A. Serjeant of the Faculty of Oriental Studies at Cambridge says in his foreword, the author is "particularly well equipped to write such a study, having lived through many of the events which he describes and having discussed their significance with some of the participants. Morsy Abdullah draws extensively on official papers from Britain, France, Germany, Turkey and the United States as well as from his own family and local archive sources. He reviews a wide spectrum of evidence in a detached, objective and en-irely scholarly way, and even the most sensitive issues are dealt with dispassionately. This is a particularly valuable feature of his work and it makes for considerable confidence on the part of the reader in Morsy Abdullah's balance and judgement.

The historical developments in the Trucial States, under British influence from 1892-1971, are treated in five chapters.

Chapter One explains why the British came in the first place, seeing the Gulf Region as an extension of the Empire in India. The "Exclusive Treaty," which the local Sheikhs and Rulers were persuaded to adopt in 1892, is seen in its context as a measure designed to inhibit the rival imperial ambitions of France, Russia, Persia, Turkey, Germany and, latterly, the United States.

For 47 years, or until the outbreak of World War II, Britain generally maintained a policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of the Trucial States. But after the Independence of India, Britain's interest in the area was based upon communications and oil. The significance of the region in world affairs increased enormously and this led, in turn, to a shift in British policy towards greater involvement. Local military forces were established and institutions prepared for eventual federation. The evidence suggests, contrary to a simplistic view of the evils of "imperialistic intervention," that the policy of involvement, in its long-term effects, will probably prove to be of greater advantage to the region than the previous period of imperial aloofness.

Chapter Two records internal changes in the area resulting more or less from British policy, especially after World War I. Morsy Abdullah records how internal evolution was considerably accelerated as a result of the discovery of oil and gives hitherto unreported information about the local attitudes.

Chapter Three deals with the neighbors of the Trucial States and especially the relations between Britain and the Ottomans in the Gulf region. The emergence of Saudi influence is traced in a most interesting way. Morsy Abdullah describes the often protracted negotiations to deal with disputes between the territories and says that they throw considerable light on the mechanics of British policy making. "It is fascinating," he says, referring to the documents, "to find high-ranking diplomats and senior members of the India Office arguing about a well used by a few Bedouins."

UAE President Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan Al Nahayyan signing the Independence Agreement for the Emirates on Dec. 2, 1971.

Chapter four illuminates the conflicting interests of Iran and Britain in the Gulf region and the evolution of good relations after years of antagonism. The apparent stability produced by the Shah's strong government, despite some actions of which Gulf states could not approve, have now given way to a period of confusion. It remains to be seen how long the power struggle in Iran will continue and what forces will finally emerge to fill the vacuum. It is however, conceivable that both Iran and the Emirates will have cause to regret the eclipse of the Shah.

Chapter Five is concerned with clarifying the issue of boundaries between Oman and the Emirates. The arrangements made by Britain as the paramount power are described in detail.

Morsy Abdullah's meticulous documentary researches have been supplemented by much travel and innumerable conversations, frequently with those officials closely involved with the evolution of policy. The book includes photographs of historical personalities, statistical tables, a bibliography, several descriptive maps and the family trees of rulers.

Swept away to tax jail

By Philip Hager
SAN FRANCISCO — Every month, a balding, paunchy 63-year-old prisoner at the Hall of Justice here receives a form letter from the government. In impersonal but unmistakably clear prose, it says: "You are notified there is due, owing and unpaid to the United States of America from the taxpayer whose name appears below the sum of $67,111.79."

The "taxpayer whose name appears below" is Franklin L. McNulty, an amiable, cherubic retired carpenter who has spent nearly four years in jail because, in reality, he is an unyielding and dedicated non-taxpayer.

In 1973, McNulty, an occasionally successful mace-track bettor from Oakland, won $128,410 in the first Sweepstakes, thanks to a horse named Bronze Hill. He went to Dublin, picked up his winnings and deposited them in a bank on Jersey, one of the Channel Islands.

But despite being repeatedly informed that, like other Americans, he must pay taxes on income earned abroad, McNulty has refused adamantly to do so — choosing instead to remain behind a jail cell door to which he himself holds the key.

"I've got my principles!" roars the otherwise mild-mannered McNulty, waving his latest monthly tax notice defiantly during a jailhouse interview.

Reaching for breath, a smile returning to his face, he adds: "Sorry. But these people got me all riled up."

Many Americans, of course, try to avoid paying their income taxes. But few become as "riled up" as McNulty, who, now serving an indefinite term for contempt, in theory could spend the rest of his life in jail.

According to the IRS, in fiscal 1978, 1,214 Americans were convicted or pleaded guilty or no contest to tax fraud charges — but only 189 won acquittals or dismissals. Slightly less than half of the errant taxpayers actually drew jail sentences.

McNulty's case is "highly unusual," an IRS official concedes, and as such has inspired an unspecified but substantial number of indignant inquiries to the agency asking how a harmless old man can rot in jail for not paying taxes on money he won from Ireland?

"These letters invariably begin, 'How dare you...'" says the official. "What people don't understand is that in general Americans are taxable on their worldwide income. That's as clear as the law can be, and it doesn't make any difference whether you win your money in the Irish Sweepstakes or the New Hampshire Sweepstakes."

Some of the general lawyers McNulty has employed along the way concede that point but ask whether it isn't time to let old man go.

"They let Patty Hearst go after serving 22 months for armed bank robbery and here's a guy still sitting in jail after 47 months for non-violent crime," says Bruce Zelis of Oakland, his former attorney. McNulty was 58 years old when he picked out a ticket on the Irish Sweepstakes on a hunch it was his turn to win.

As McNulty recalls it, he "never got too excited." But he became increasingly incensed when he found he'd have to pay a substantial tax — about $35,000 — on his winnings. Almost anyone else would have paid his taxes and then begun to enjoy the rest. But not Frank McNulty.

Instead, he deposited the money abroad and refused to pay a nickel to the IRS. He was charged, convicted and sentenced to prison for income tax evasion in March 1975. Last year, after completing that prison term, he faced a civil action by the government seeking to collect the unpaid taxes, interest and penalties — now totaling over $60,000 on prize money that had grown with interest to about $155,000. Still, McNulty refused and was sentenced to jail for civil contempt. He's been in the San Francisco county jail ever since. — (LAT)

Aimed at reducing tariffs

EEC cites progress in trade talks

GENEVA, March 7 (R) — European Economic Community (EEC) negotiators say they have achieved "comparatively satisfactory and balanced" results in world trade talks aimed at opening up markets by reducing tariffs.

In a summary of the present state of the lengthy 99-nation negotiations now in their final phase, the EEC delegation reported Tuesday substantial progress in harmonizing tariffs. This would be done by reducing disparities between high and low duties imposed on foreign imports by various participating countries.

But it seemed that the general extent of cuts in tariffs would be moderate, with the average EEC tariff being reduced from 9.8 per cent to 7.5 per cent.

This represents a reduction of less than 2.5 per cent compared with about 40 per cent cited by leading participants when the negotiations entered a substantive state last year.

The EEC delegation published the summary after chief negotiator Wilhelm Hafkamp reported Monday to Common Market ministers in Brussels. The ministers failed to approve the package of accords presented to them, and asked the negotiators to try to obtain further improvements but said they would discuss the issue again early next month.

W. Germany, EEC disagree on Greek workers' status

BRUSSELS, March 7 (R) — West Germany has been told that Common Market law would not permit it to refuse entry on grounds of security or public order to Greek workers after Greece joins the European Economic Community (EEC).

Foreign Ministry State Secretary Klaus Von Dohnanyi told a meeting of EEC foreign ministers Tuesday that Bonn wanted to make an oral statement when Greece joined the community to the effect that West Germany had the right to limit freedom of movement of Greek workers on such grounds.

fram products and to set fair trading rules for the 1980s.

In addition to tariff reductions, the overall package includes accords on trade in meat and dairy products, and a series of codes governing use of export subsidies and offsetting import duties, government purchasing practices, technical and product standards, and customs valuation and licensing procedures.

The EEC, Japan and the United States are key participants in the negotiations. The U.S. and Japan have concluded tentative bilateral deals with each other and with a number of other leading states, and Japan and the EEC last week reported progress in tariff-cutting talks. But the community and the U.S. have still to complete their bargaining.

Next month is the latest target date for concluding the final package of accords, which will then have to be submitted to governments and parliaments for approval.

In negotiations on farm products, countries agreed to set up an international advisory council which would pool information on agricultural markets, and promote consultations between governments on farm trade problems, the EEC said.

The council would also coordinate work of commodity councils established to implement individual international agreements on trade in dairy products, bovine meat and cereals.

Fuel crunch felt

Airlines in U.S. cancel flights

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP) — A jet fuel shortage forced widespread cancellation of airline flights Tuesday while several American oil companies said they will buy-cott Iranian oil because the price is too high.

Two of America's largest airlines United and Delta, said hundreds of flights will be scrubbed in March because they can't get enough jet fuel.

In another development, Exxon said it would limit the amount of gasoline it sells dealers during March.

An industry spokesman said that brought to at least 26 the number of oil companies that have started limiting supplies of gasoline to dealers and distributors.

United said it will cut back its flight schedule by 3.4 per cent this month. Spokesman Ed Williams said that means an average of 38 flights will be cancelled each weekday, with 118 flights scrubbed on Saturdays and 141 on Sundays.

Delta said it was cancelling nine daily departures from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

Meanwhile, several oil companies—Gulf, Continental Oil and Atlantic Richfield—said they would not participate in Iran's auction of crude oil later this month.

Arab bank signs W. Africa pact

KHARTOUM, March 7 (R) — The Arab Bank for Economic Development in Africa (BADEA) has signed a cooperation agreement with the West African Economic Community, the bank's headquarters in Khartoum said Tuesday. The agreement covers exchange of manpower, information and studies on various aspects of economic development in the community's member states.

Turkey wins EEC crop accord

BRUSSELS, March 7 (R) — EEC foreign ministers meeting here reached general agreement that Turkey should be allowed tariff-free access to community markets for agricultural produce after 1984. Belgian sources at the meeting said the ministers were generally agreed on this aspect of a new cooperation agreement to be negotiated in five years' time.

SAUDI ARABIA LINKED TO WORLD MARKETS

Saudi Research & Investment Limited announces the opening in Jeddah of a service which puts Saudi Arabian investors, and expatriates, in round-the-clock contact for the first time with the London Stock Exchange and all key financial centres.

A direct two-way teleprinter link, via the London offices of Rowe Rudd & Co. Limited, enables buying and selling orders to be transmitted all over the world at any time.

Other services include international investment advice; complete portfolio management; and dealings in gold, diamonds, fine art, commodities, and property.

U.S. sees stability in money markets

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—There should be much more stability in world currency markets this year because of an expected decline in U.S. international trade and payments deficits, Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon said Tuesday.

Solomon said inflation will continue to be a problem in many industrial nations, and expects little further progress in reducing unemployment in the near future.

He discussed the world economic outlook at a news conference held in connection with the opening of the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund's Interim Committee Wednesday.

The committee, which comprises representatives of the IMF's 138 member nations, was due to meet only one day instead of the usual two because there were few issues to be decided, Solomon said.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y Z L B A A X R
L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another, in this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

WEATHER

Forecast for the next 24 hours:
Patches of low and medium clouds concentrate gradually over parts of the northern region, with a possible shower and a drop in the temperature. Surface winds to blow westerly to southwesterly at moderate to active speed, raising dust and sands occasionally. The temperatures will rise over the central region, while misty conditions are expected over the eastern coast during night and in the early hours of the morning.
Sea conditions will be light to moderate in the territorial waters.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 8, 1979

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) ♈
Unexpected news from a friend may not be to your liking. Try to avoid needless remarks. Don't argue about joint expenditures.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) ♉
You have some good ideas now, but don't expect everyone to see your point of view. Friends are liable to tell you what might go wrong.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) ♊
Financial considerations preoccupy you most of the day. Later an unexpected work assignment or health upset may interfere with socializing.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) ♋
Late over feelings be your guide in romantic matters now. Avoid getting irritated by petty trifles - you're perhaps too sensitive!

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) ♌
You may be planning a surprise for family members. Don't be surprised yourself if everyone does not react as you anticipate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) ♍
Though you will succeed in getting your viewpoints across, others may be somewhat recalcitrant. Don't be careless re financial documents.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) ♎
Financial gain is possible now through ingenuity, but a mate or close ally may not approve of your methods. Don't get impatient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) ♏
You have some good ideas now, but don't expect everyone to see your point of view. Friends are liable to tell you what might go wrong.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) ♐
A risky financial scheme does have some merit, but it's too soon to let others in on your secret. In the p.m. you may change social plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) ♑
Though you'll make some headway re partnership affairs, there are still some things to be worked out. Be content with modest gains.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) ♒
It's one of those days at work when some things go right and some go wrong. You may feel like complaining to the boss. Don't!

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) ♓
Travel plans made now with a loved one are subject to change by day's end. It could be because of a financial matter.

Hanoi to permit Chinese withdrawal

BANGKOK, March 7 (AP) — Vietnam said Wednesday it would allow a Chinese invasion force to withdraw from its soil without hindrance, but later reported continued fighting and Vietnamese victories.

The latest battle report from Hanoi said China had declared a withdrawal but its troops Tuesday and Wednesday continued to carry out "many barbarous criminal acts including plundering, burning people's homes and shellings."

No major battle was described by Hanoi over the past two days and analysts in Bangkok said there were indications that some Chinese units had begun to pull back, although it was too early to detect a pattern in Chinese mili-

But analysts see no sign that mass pullout in effect

ary movements. Any withdrawal would probably be gradual.

Vietnam claimed it had scored "a splendid victory" against China and that the frontier area had become "a burial ground" for the Chinese.

"They have been forced to retreat," an editorial in the communist party newspaper "Nhan Dan" declared.

The editorial said Vietnam would allow the Chinese to withdraw in peace but warned that "if the Chinese troops, while pulling out, continue acts of war they will be dully punished."

The battle report said that Tuesday and Wednesday Chinese troops burned and looted villages around the provincial capital in Lang Son Province, northeast of Hanoi.

It also described recent clashes in Cao Bang and Hoang Lien Son Provinces, where the report said the Chinese had dug fresh trenches, staged ground attacks and shelled villages.

Vietnam said it had "duly punished" the Chinese in all those areas.

Laos meanwhile accused China of moving many regular army divisions to its frontier and smuggling spies and commandos into the country to create disturbances.

The official Laotian news agency KPL said an emergency meeting was held Tuesday to discuss the "serious situation" and that relations between Laos and China were deteriorating "with each passing day."

Vietnam and the Soviet Union, two close allies of Laos, accused China of border provocations against Laos as part of Peking's invasion of Vietnam. Laos shares borders with both China and Vietnam.

Wednesday Col. Nghiem Tue, a member of the editorial board of "Nhan Dan," said there were indications that the Chinese had begun withdrawing some of their troops from Vietnam Tuesday night.

He added that the Chinese still had 16 divisions inside Vietnam's Lao Cai, Ha Thuyen, Cao Bang, Lang Son and Mong Cai Provinces along the border.

"It is left to be seen if all of these withdraw beyond the historic boundary between China and Vietnam," he said.

"We would allow them to withdraw provided they did not damage the Vietnam people's property and cause loss of life in the border areas while going back," he added.

Another Vietnamese official, Nguyen Viet Nam, vice-chairman of the Committee for relations with foreign countries, said Tuesday night that the invading forces had failed in their drive to capture major provincial capitals in Vietnam's northern provinces.

BREAK: Chinese soldiers, according to the official caption, pause for water in their fighting in Vietnam. Wednesday Vietnam said it would allow the Chinese to leave its soil unhindered, but analysts in Bangkok could see no indications that a systematic withdrawal was under way.

Qaddafi reportedly rearming Ugandans

NAIROBI, March 7 (AP) — Libya is airlifting massive amounts of military equipment into Uganda in preparation for a Ugandan counterattack against Tanzanian invaders that could come in about a week, Western diplomats said Wednesday.

The diplomats said tanks, fighter planes, heavy artillery and infantry weapons have been flown to Entebbe, Uganda's international airport on Lake Victoria, in an air bridge that began about a week ago. They said Libyan and Ugandan cargo planes are making daily flights.

The expected Ugandan counterattack could open up the decisive phase of the four-month war, the diplomats said. "The next week or so should show whether the military balance has shifted in favor of Uganda," one diplomatic source said.

President Idi Amin said two days ago that a counterstrike was in the offing. In Uganda Radio broadcasts monitored in Nairobi, he said the time was coming to hit the enemy hard and called on his troops to fight to the last man.

Western diplomats said Tuesday about 1,400 Libyan troops have been flown into Uganda to bolster Amin's faltering forces. In Tripoli, Libya's official Jana News Agency denied the report and said the only Libyans in Uganda were teachers, doctors and bank workers.

The denial made no mention of military supplies. But Western sources pictured Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi as disappointed and angered by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere's rejection of mediation efforts made by Libya and by the 49-state Organization of African Unity.

Islam. Once they pass their exams in those official, recognized institutes and obtain their degrees, they become eligible for teaching.

"But all sciences are based on the Holy Koran," he objected.

"In my view," he continued, "it is a matter of having someone to pull strings. If I had, a post would have been created for me. But unfortunately, I haven't. Let me tell you that all you say is unrealistic. How many high officials, how many heads of state or government do not hold a degree but have proven their worth in practice?"

"Mediation without qualifications," I said, "is useless in our schools. We shoulder a heavy responsibility toward the new generations. Human conditions have greatly developed since the time the Holy Koran was revealed, and sciences have proliferated. The Book itself has laid down law, prayers and rituals as well as social behavior, which were responsibly interpreted by the early Ulema. Some Ulema still deal with things that did not exist at the time of the Holy Prophet and his followers. No single human mind can encompass all such knowledge; and this is the reason why various persons have to study them separately, each in the proper institute, for years, before specializing and venturing to teach them."

Sheikh Ibrahim was angry. He rose and said to me: "In short, you don't have a post for me. It seems that I wasted a great deal of my life memorizing the Holy Koran. People, unfortunately don't need Koran recitators like me any more. At their weddings and funerals, they prefer to use records or tapes and listen to the voice of famous Qar'is (readers.) Wassalamu Alaikum."

He turned on his heel and left. I tried to continue what I was writing before this man came in, but I couldn't.

Poor Sheikh Ibrahim; he memorized the Holy Koran to make a living out of it, rather than to help others.

self-rule, include a review of security arrangements in the sensitive Sinai region after a set period, and also that Egypt's defense pacts with Arab states may have precedence over the treaty.

The two presidents will hold three sessions of talks over Carter's three-day visit, and on Saturday morning he will address the Egyptian People's Assembly.

Tuesday the state-run Cairo Radio said in its daily commentary, "Peace cannot be reached within the framework of a partial agreement, but within a wider framework."

A senior official, who declined to be named, said he feared there had been a modification of the so-called "seventh formula" worked out by the United States during talks late last month between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Premier Khalil and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan in Washington.

The "seventh formula" is a diplomatic shorthand for the proposals submitted by the Carter administration before the Washington talks ended without agreement on how to overcome the differences between the two Middle East states.

The official said a modification of the formula could explain Israel's rapid acceptance of President Carter's latest proposals. At the time Khalil said the seventh formula brought solutions from Egypt's standpoint, but it was rejected by Israel.

The Arab energy conference here has been told that there will still be plenty of Arab oil and gas by the end of this century.

Farouk Muwakkil, economic consultant with the Arab Fund for Economic and Social Development, said Tuesday in Abu Dhabi that no shortage of Arab oil was expected by the year 2000 if the 1977 production and export levels were maintained.

A United Nations economist, Nourah Baroudi, who specializes in energy forecasting for the Arab countries, said projections for the Middle East region tended to confirm that the world should reach the 1990s without an oil shortage.

But by the year 2030, the Middle East and North African oil exporters would become the sole suppliers of traded oil, according to another expert, Wolf Hafele, deputy director of the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis says that all regions of the world except these countries would have to resort to the use of coal liquefaction or more expensive domestic oil.

He said his forecast assumed these countries would not allow output to rise beyond 33.4 million barrels a day, a level about 50 per cent higher than the peak production in 1973.

Baroudi warned that the world must be given the incentive to expand energy supply, and particularly to sustain the production of the additional higher-cost oil necessary to continue to meet demand in the coming decades.

He added: "This could only be achieved if the real price of oil rose insignificantly."

Barring an abrupt price hike in a disruptive way of the 1973 type, the logical solution would be a gradual increase over a long period," he said.

He thought, however, that the real price of oil was not likely to increase significantly as long as the demand for Saudi Arabian oil did not grow out of proportion to the country's capacity.

Arah newspaper reaction to the visit was almost unanimously unfavorable.

A Kuwait paper, "Al Anhaa," warned that the Arab Nation "has reached a dangerous crossroads in its history, especially if the surrender agreement being prepared by Carter's visit is signed."

Kuwait's Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al

Sabah stated that his government "will abide by the Baghdad Arab summit resolutions, if Sadat of Egypt signs a unilateral peace treaty with Israel."

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli cabinet is to convene in special session Friday for its first report from Prime Minister Menachem Begin and to decide on the procedures for the Carter visit due to Begin Saturday night.
